Why do Playgrounds Matter?

Play is a critical part of the social, emotional, cognitive and physical development of every child. Unfortunately, the vast majority of playgrounds deny children with disabilities and critical illnesses the opportunity for exercise, entertainment, and social interactions which other children enjoy. In fact, only a small percentage of fully accessible playgrounds exist within our nation and these are insufficient to serve 43 million Americans with disabilities.

An Inclusive Playground is specifically designed to remove physical and social barriers so ALL children, with and without disabilities and/or critical illnesses, can play side by side with their peers and families.

Highland is known for many things, but caring for each other is one thing that stands out the most. The Highland Parks & Recreation Department strives to serve everyone's interests and is excited to have the city council's endorsement to begin a campaign to raise funds for our new all-abilities playground!

So what is the difference between people with and without disabilities when it comes to play? The answer is simple; nothing! All kids want to experience the feeling of flight on a zip-line, butterflies when going down a slide, joy when swinging back and forth, or spinning on a merry-go-round.

There are no social barriers when someone smiles!
